Justyna Zajac, Ph.D., is Visiting Professor and European Security Senior Research Fellow in the Departments of International Studies (IU Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies) and Political Science (College of Arts and Sciences). Dr. Zajac is a Full Professor at the University of Warsaw, Poland.

Dr. Zajac’s research interests are international relations with special emphasis on international security and foreign policy analysis. She focuses primarily on European security, broadly understood, and its Mediterranean and East-Central European aspects, as well as on Euro-Atlantic security and political cooperation in the context of global redistribution of power and on Russia’s revisionist policy, in particular.

Dr. Zajac values analyzing problems at the crossroads of politics, policy, and science through public service. As such, she was appointed by the President of the Republic of Poland to serve as a member of the National Strategic Review Committee. She was also a member and Chairperson of the Council of Young Scientists of the Minister of Science and Higher Education and a two-term member of the Steering Committee of the Standing Group on International Relations, European Consortium for Political Research. Dr. Zajac’s most recent of her ten published books is Poland’s Security Policy: The West, Russia, and the Changing International Order (Palgrave Macmillan, 2016).
